

KITS AND PATTERNS for Needleworkers

ARNHILD

While knitting has been an avocation for Arnhild Hillesland ever since she can remember, it took a while before it became her vocation. Arnhild received a doctorate in Norwegian at the University of Tromsø, the northernmost university in the world. She taught Norwegian and also folk dancing. Dancing took her around the world, quite literally, as she toured internationally. In 1986, Arnhild married an American from Iowa and moved to the United States. She now shares the folk culture of Norway through knitting – designing knitwear patterns, teaching workshops, writing books, and importing the wonderful Rauma wool yarns. NANCY LINDBERG

Nancy's patterns are popular with knitters
for the clear, easy-to-follow directions.
Nancy developed the ability to see a pattern through a new knitter's eyes by extensive teaching experience.
She writes only one pattern a year
so she can anticipate problems,
and knits a sample of every size
that is listed on a pattern.
"I don't just trust the math.
I make each item to ensure it looks good in each size. If not, I start right back at the beginning," she says.
