loves bees. She began her mutually-beneficial relationship with them 28 years ago, as a beekeeper. Soon she was making candles from her own beeswax, and the positive response to them led her to develop a company that at its peak employed 28 and sold thousands of candles through a myriad of outlets. Today Honeyglow has returned to its roots, all candles made by Margarete herself and sold through small, independent stores. She loves being able again to share her creations and her knowledge on a more personal level – and so do we!

Danish-American artist Cynthia McKeen was profoundly influenced by a childhood spent close to the natural world of rural Iowa. Her dearest childhood companion was her Danish grandmother, whose weathered hands were proficient at cutting paper. Papirklip is a favorite medium of Cyndi's; through her company proongly she uses a painstaking die-cut process to replicate her designs of nisser and forest creatures, graceful swans and ever-blooming flowers.

SCANDIA SPECIALTIES & GIFT CHALET

Scandinavian importing, like our own store, is often a family affair. Scandia Specialties in Auburn, Mass. had roots in the travel industry in the 1940s. It evolved into importing Swedish gifts, and since 1966 has been owned by Marion and Gordon "Gub" Forsberg, specializing in paper products, pewter, Christmas and kitchen items. Marion and Gub have (mostly) retired, passing down the business to daughter Susan, her husband Chuck and their son Eric. That dynamic trio has created their own complementary business Gift Chalet as well, decorating a myriad of Nordic-themed products with screen printing and embroidery.
